

Up late with Kevin so didn't ride

I woke up at 6:45am and briefly, very briefly, considered riding Tuesday morning. But having not gotten home from the ER with Kevin until something past 1am that just didn't seem like a great idea. This late-night ER thing has played out several times recently, as his abdominal pains sometimes become extreme just about the time most of us would be ready to turn in. Hopefully today's follow up appointment (after last week's surgery) will come up with some answers and get him back on his feet soon!