

"I want to see more pictures!:"

That was the comment Kevin made after yesterday, or the day before's post. Yes, I've got quite a few, and if I get a chance soon, I'll post them, but, as they say in Calvin & Hobbes, "The days are just packed." Today is the BIG day. It's 5am local time, and those who know me, know I'm not a morning person. But this is Machu Picchu day, which means seeing it at sunrise and hiking up the monster nasty adjacent hill first, before the big crowds hit. It's like getting into Disneyland an hour before park opens, but you're complaining about having to get up at 7am to do it. Yeah, well, try 4:30am! Pictures soon, I promise.