

Last Tuesday's ride

I got so caught up in my post about loving my bike and what the right bike is that I neglected my Tuesday-morning ride report!

Yes, of course there was a ride Tuesday morning. Neither Kevin was there, but we did have Eric, JR and George. Very easy pace, especially for a Tuesday. Eric wasn't pushing, that's for sure, having raced both Saturday and Sunday and showing quite a bit of wear & tear. He opted out for the early exit down 84 from Sky L'onda, skipping the West Old LaHonda loop. Of course, it might have been to get to work on time, because we were probably 10 minutes behind schedule at that point.

Lots of fog at the start, clear on top and, of course, beautiful on West Old LaHonda. And then a descent back into the fog heading into Woodside. About 13 minutes behind schedule by the end. That's OK. I can deal with "easy" once in a while.
