

Back for a few days, time to fly again

Less than a week after returning to France it's time to head to the Midwest, Wisconsin specifically, to see Trek's dealer show. Most of the bike news has already been released (like the new Madone 9 aero road bike) but there will be plenty of other things to go over, and an opportunity to test-ride new product as well.

Kinda sucks though, getting into shape by riding 8 days in a row in France, and then coming back and losing out on a lot of regular riding! Hate that. Hopefully tomorrow morning I'll wake up early enough before the flight to get out on a ride with Kevin. That's the plan anyway!