

Well ick!

Drizzle isn't much fun. No way around it. You can't ride your nice bike, you've got to wear more stuff than you'd like to, and there's no karmic extra credit for doing something challenging. Nevertheless, we had planned to at least head out to the coast and come back via Tunitas. That didn't work out when Kevin started feeling pain in his ankle(???), of undetermined origin.

So just a quick (well, not that quick, short better describes it) run up Old LaHonda, back down 84 into Woodside, followed by The Loop. 35 miles. Just barely made my minimum 120 mile/week target (by just .7 miles!). Next week will go better!
