

Hope it wasn't cyclists that removed and tossed barriers on WOLH

I do realize I have much to be thankful for, living in this area, but yeah, it would be nice to be able to dismiss with base layers, leg warmers and long-fingered gloves! Still, 44 degrees isn't all that cold, and the company (Karen, Kevin, Kevin) was good.

No fast times this morning climbing Kings and in fact my heart rate didn't want to get too high, as if I wasn't working all that hard. Maybe I wasn't.

We did notice quite a few more cyclists that usual, due to Bike to Work Day. Sure hope people stick with it and it's not just a one-day fun thing to do for most. As much as I ride for recreation & fun, I also ride 5 days out of 6 to work, so I think I have some honest credentials in this regard.

Unfortunately, I have some concerns regarding the photo above. The barriers on West Old LaHonda, where the road is damaged? One of them has been moved out of the way, and the other is actually off the side of the road, as you can see in the picture. Last week Kevin and I moved the barriers back in place, but doesn't seem like that lasted very long. Let's hope it's not cyclists doing this!!!
