

They're finally working on Downtown West Old LaHonda?

Tuesday's ride? Kevin (pilot) showed up, had some fun up the hill, varying the pace a bit, only to blow up before the top. Still ended up just under 30 minutes, so, not so awfully bad. And nice clear day too!

Unlike Thursday morning, waking up to really icky skies, too-warm temps, and just not really feeling it. Karen met up with me and we rode through the park, with me wondering if we were running ahead or behind JeffZ, who's making a habit of joining up with us on the way up Kings. I was thinking he'd probably already passed by, and I was right; we didn't see him until arriving at the top. But we did see work near the "Downtown Improvement Project" building on West Old LaHonda. Oh, and no insect stings this week either!