

Chain Reaction Facebook page on-line

I've had my own Facebook page for a bit, but it was time to get something going for the shop. A shameless attempt to let people know what we're up to and drum up business. So, drumroll please, here it is!

The all-new Chain Reaction Facebook page! This is going to be the "public" face of Chain Reaction in the "social media" world. That means this is where you go to "write on our wall" telling us what you're up to, learn about our latest promotions, and various other things we haven't yet figured out. And yes, it would be great if you "like" us, even though I don't really know what that does or means. I just know that it's supposed to be more-better if more people "like" you. Sounds reasonable.

But for starters, please tell us about your favorite SF Peninsula ride! The direct link is here.

This is not my "personal" page that people already know about. The business-relevant content of that page should be moved over to the new page. Please move there with it. Thanks! --Mike--