

It would be tough to ever move away from here

A small taste of what my Tuesday & Thursday mornings are like. It's November so sure, it's a bit cooler, but you also get those crystal-clear views of the coast, and while it's "crisp" down below (Woodside), by the time you're up on Skyline it may have warmed up a bit, plus you're certainly warmed up yourself.

Not unusual today was Kevin (my son, not the pilot) pulling ahead of me, again, on Kings. Not that Kevin (the pilot) hadn't done that some time earlier! Even more unusual was me holding onto Geroge's wheel on the 84 descent into Woodside, with most of the rest hanging back a fair distance. It's usually me that's conservative there, with Kevin (my son) riding up front with the fast guys.
