

Embracing the inner geek

Playing around with new iPhone's panorama function

Just started to play with the new iPhone's panorama function. Pretty cool, actually! I can see a lot of use for this on mountain tops, locally and otherwise, along with other places cyclists frequently hang out. Maybe an interior shot of Pescadero Bakery?

Between my iPhone and the Hero2 bike cam, plus Garmin 800 GPS plus Bontrager Node 1 bike computer, it would be pretty hard to suggest I'm something other than a technology geek. Oh, DuraAce electric shifting on my bike too (although I think my next one is going to have the new 11-speed "manual" version). --Mike--
