

Becky's 2nd trip up Old LaHonda (updated)

It's been, what, 4 years? More? A while anyway since Becky has braved Skyline again. That school thing and life-in-general has gotten in the way; she doesn't see cycling until you feel like you can't suffer another pedal stroke as something to aspire to like some of us. But today she took her new Trek Domane up the hill. Not exactly in world-class time or anything, but she made it, and of course, there's got to be a reward for doing so, and what better reward than lunch at Alice's at Sky L'onda?

It's a pretty crowded day on Old La Honda!

Becky all-smiles because she's got Kevin, her brother, walking up Old LaHonda too!

Eating at Alice's (Sky Londa), our bikes in front of the Group W bench outside