

Windy solo ride to Candlestick

Thought it would be fun to ride to Candlestick and take photos of the 'cross races, and definitely wasn't planning a solo ride, but Kevin had other ideas, after bumping his head yesterday and complaining that it hurt to put on a helmet. So, I'm off alone, into some pretty nasty winds today, taking the "high" road up (Canada, Skyline, Sawyer Camp Trail) and returning via the bike paths along the bay.

The "high" road is definitely preferable if you would rather not lose your way a few times!

In the end, about 65 miles and 2000ft of climbing (virtually flat as far as my rides go!).