

Survived 54 hours going nowhere

Amazing that I could, beginning Monday morning, fly from SFO to Seattle to Tokyo to Singapore then back to Tokyo then LAX and finally home this afternoon (Wednesday) and feel good enough to go straight to work. But it all went according to plan. More soon. For the time being, if you come across the term "mileage runner" and wonder what that means, just ask me and I'll explain it. You'll think I'm nuts and you'll be absolutely right. -Mike-