

The Face of Evil!

Does this look evil or what? A "Goat's Head" thorn that truly looks like a Goat's head, spotted in a tire by Patrick, our Service Manager in Redwood City.

This was just too cool to be ignored. Obviously found by someone with better eyes than mine, it's a nearly-perfect image of a Goat's head, which of course is why they call these things Goat's Head thorns.

More often than not they're addressed with various 4-letter expletives though, as they're pulled from tires to the sounds of a "hiss" that tells you it's going to be a longer day than you thought.
