

Tour de France final day (Paris) photos

A few post-race photos (and a couple during) in Paris, after the TdF concluded. While Kevin and I planned and rode this trip on our own, we did utilize Trek Travel's awesome final-day option at the Auto Club, which allowed us to literally get onto the course, nobody in front of you, rather than 6-deep somewhere along the Champ Elysees. Great food, drink, but mostly fantastic positioning to see the race itself. And afterward, we got to spend quite a bit of time with the Trek Factory Riders themselves.

Sky's Porte and BMC's Schar enjoying a moment after finishing the TdF

That's me, standing precariously on top of a barricade, helping to remove Vittel vinyl from a rental van.

Seat camera

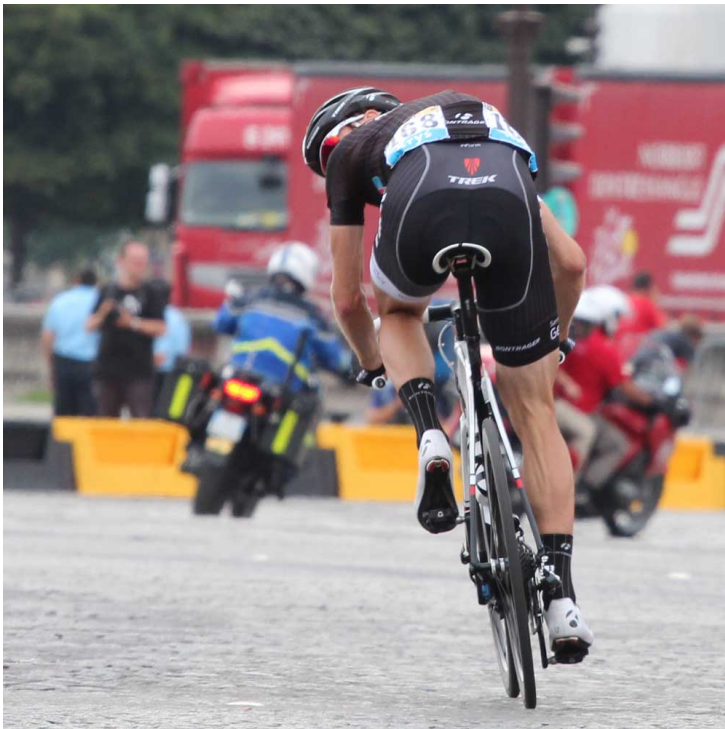

It was nothing, really

Vino, Tinkoff (the guy being hoisted) and other Astana folk celebrating Nibali's win

A pair of riders drafting behind cars to get back to the field after a crash

Jens Voigt looking back during his brief breakaway in Paris

Some interesting action on those chains